Description

Immigration law is a complex and fast-changing area of law which often responds to labour market needs and the policy views of the government of the day. Munro Doig's migration law team is highly regarded in the profession and is often called upon to manage complex migration matters. Munro Doig provides high-level strategic advice to businesses across all industries (including manufacturing, construction, engineering, mining and hospitality) to secure visas for overseas workers. We also provide advice to individuals, including business migrants, in facilitating their migration to Australia.
